Showers Parana to Sul de Minas Wednesday, Thursday
By Drew Lerner

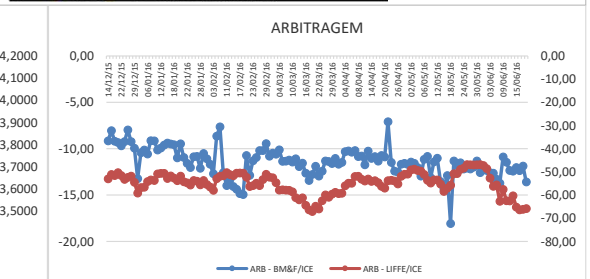

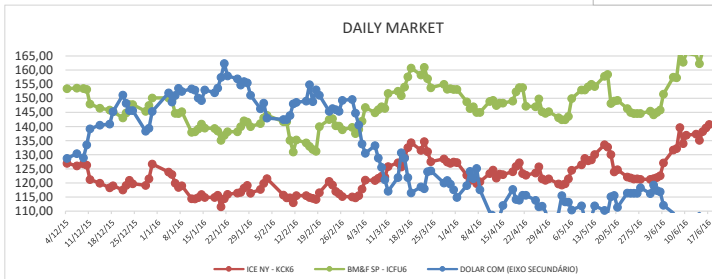

Kansas City, June 21 (World Weather, Inc.) – A few showers will occur in southern coffee areas from southern Sul de Minas to Parana Wednesday and Thursday. Otherwise the coming week to ten days will be mostly dry and mild to warm with no risk of crop threatening cold.

BRAZIL

Rain continued to occur outside of coffee production areas Monday and early today. Showers occurred mostly in coastal areas of Espírito Santo and Bahia where amounts ranged from a trace to 5 millimeters. Some rain also fell in grain areas of Parana, but coffee areas stayed dry. High temperatures Monday afternoon were in the lower 20s Fahrenheit in northern Parana southern and eastern most Sao Paulo and from southern and central Rio Grande do Sul through far southern Sul de Minas to east-central Minas Gerais. Highs elsewhere were mostly in the upper 20s to around 30 degrees Celsius. Some very chilly air occurred in coastal areas from the city of Sao Paulo to southern Espírito Santo where highs were limited to the middle and upper teens.

Mostly dry weather will occur in coffee production areas today. Rain will develop briefly from northern Parana to southern Sul de Minas Wednesday and Thursday. Resulting rainfall will vary from 5 to 20 millimeters with northern Parana and Sao Paulo wettest. Some rain will reach into southern Sul de Minas and Rio de Janeiro while rainfall elsewhere in Sul de Minas will likely be minimal along with other crop areas from central Minas Gerais and parts of Zona de Mata northward.

Mostly dry weather will return late this week and continue through the weekend and into much of next week. A few random showers might occur, but none of them will produce significant rainfall. Temperatures will be seasonable over the next week to ten days. Daily highs will be in the 20s Celsius except from northern Minas Gerais to Bahia where upper 20s and lower 30s are most likely. Lowest morning temperatures will remain mostly in the upper single digits and teens. A few lower 20-degree lows will occur in the far north and along the upper Atlantic Coast periodically.
