Rain Late Friday Into Sunday In South - By Drew Lerner

Kansas City, August 17 (World Weather, Inc.) – Rain is expected Friday through Sunday in southern coffee production areas of Brazil. The precipitation may be locally heavy for this time of year and the situation will be closely monitored because of the risk of premature flowering in a few locations in Sao Paulo and Parana.

BRAZIL

Mostly dry weather occurred in coffee production areas of Brazil Tuesday. A few showers impacted the Cerrado Mineiro region and near the port city of Sao Paulo, but neither region reported more than 5 millimeters. High temperatures Tuesday afternoon were mostly in the 20s Celsius except from far northern Minas Gerais to central Bahia where 30s were reported. Central Bahia reached 38 degrees which is well above average for this time of year.

A strong cold front will generate some rain from Parana to Sul de Minas and Rio de Janeiro Friday into Sunday. The precipitation will be most significant Friday night and Saturday with emphasis on Sao Paulo and Parana. The advertised rain may be great enough to induce a little flowering with amounts varying from 8 to 30 millimeters. Most of the greatest rain will be southern and eastern Sao Paulo and possibly a few of the southernmost Sul de Minas locations. Southernmost Rio de Janeiro may also receive some of the greater rain totals. Each of these wetter areas might get enough rain to impact coffee in such a manner to induce a little flowering. However, the bulk of Sul de Minas and northeastern Sao Paulo are not expected to receive quite enough rain to induce flowering. The situation will be closely monitored, however. The precipitation will break up to insignificant showers as it lifts to the northeast Sunday and Monday. Rainfall in Espirito Santo, Zona de Mata, central and northern Minas Gerais and coastal Bahia will be less than 8 millimeters with no threat of flowering expected. Generally dry weather will then resume and prevail through most of next week.

Monday and Tuesday mornings will be coolest from Parana to southernmost Sul de Minas where low temperatures will slip to the range of 2 to 6 degrees. A few of the coolest locations may experience a little light frost in low-lying areas, but most of the coffee will be spared from damage. Temperatures will rebound later next week. High temperatures today and Thursday will be in the middle and upper 20s except in northern Minas Gerais and interior Bahia where lower to middle 30s are likely. Lowest temperatures in the mornings until early next week will be in the upper single digits and teens with a few temperatures over 20 in the far north.

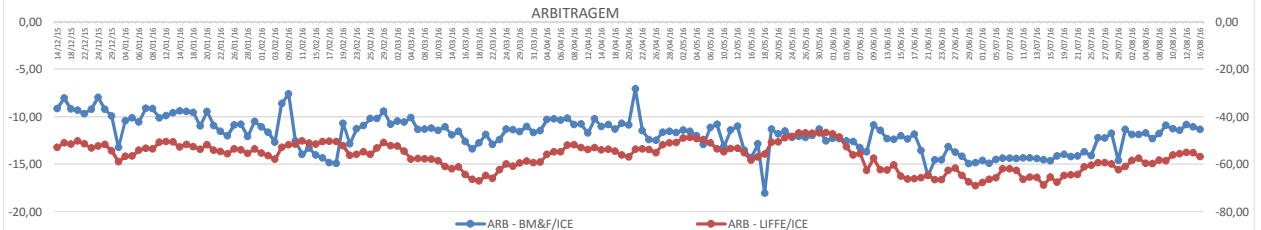

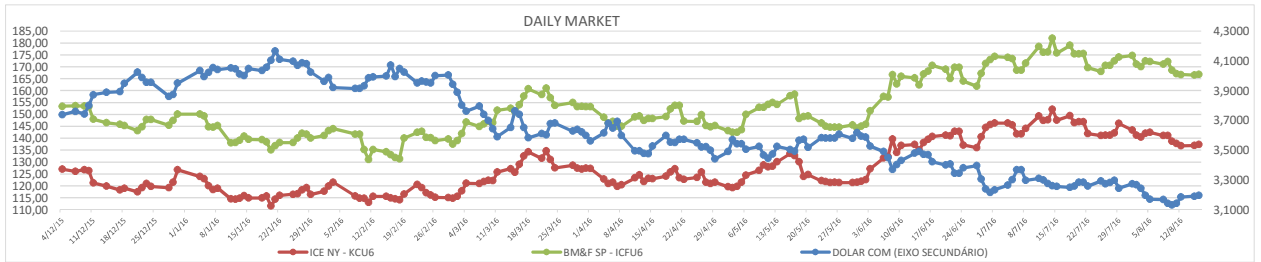

Northern Brazil will cool down next week, as well, with highs dipping to the upper 20s and lower 30s while lows are in the upper single digits and teens.
