Frequent Showers Parana to Cerrado Mineiro - By Drew Lerner
Kansas City, November 1 (World Weather, Inc.) – Rain was mostly confined to Sao Paulo coffee areas Monday, but showers will be possible from Parana to the heart of Minas Gerais today before increasing from Parana to Cerrado Mineiro during the balance of this week and into the weekend. Northern coffee areas will continue drier biased and warm.

BRAZIL
Satellite and surface weather observations suggested showers and thunderstorms occurred in portions of Sao Paulo Monday. Most of the precipitation was light in coffee areas varying from a trace amount upward to 14 millimeters through 0600 GMT today. Mostly dry weather occurred in other coffee production areas. High temperatures Monday afternoon were in the middle 20s to lower 30s most often, but one location in central Bahia Showers of a limited significance will occur again today. The precipitation will be possible from Parana to northern Minas Gerais with coverage of 25-30% and rainfall of 2 to 10 millimeters. Areas to the north will be left dry or mostly dry.

A new frontal boundary will push rain into Parana and Sao Paulo Wednesday and Thursday before lifting through Sul de Minas. Rio de Janeiro and southern Cerrado Mineiro late Thursday through the coming weekend. Daily rain totals of 6 to 20 millimeters and local totals to 35 millimeters will result. Additional daily showers and thunderstorms will occur next week with daily rainfall of 3 to 13 millimeters and local totals to 25 each day. The precipitation will occur most often from Zona de Mata to Cerrado Mineiro southward to Parana. Rio de Janeiro will be wettest.

Temperatures are unlikely to change much over the coming week with northeastern crop areas staying warmest. Highs from Parana to Cerrado Mineiro, Sul de Minas, Zona de Mata and Rio de Janeiro will range in the middle 20s through the lower 30s most days during the coming ten days. Highs further north will continue in the lower to middle 30s. Lowest morning temperatures will be in the teens and lower 20s.
