Coffee Market Report

The latest Commitment of Traders report from the New York arabica coffee market has seen the shorter term in nature Managed Money fund sector of this market increase their net short sold position within the market by 7.32% over the week of trade leading up to Tuesday 7th. November; to register a new net short sold position of 48,905 Lots.

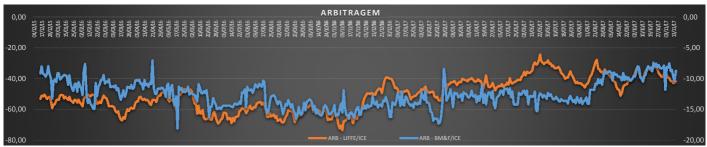

Over the same week, the Non-Commercial Speculative sector of this market increased their net short sold position within this market by 6.31%, to register a net short sold position of 49,399 Lots. This net short sold position which is the equivalent of 14,004,398 bags has most likely been modestly reduced again, following a period of mixed but overall steady to buoyant trade that has since followed and likewise, that of the Managed Money fund sector of the market.

The news of the extensive net short sold scenario within the New York market is likely to bring to the fore some degree of caution on the part of the speculative bears within the market, albeit that they might foresee the possibility of holding on to buy back into the potential for rising volumes of price fixation selling activity on the part of exporters taking in stocks of new crop coffees from the new Mexican, Central American and Colombian crops. But the ability of this market to have halted its slide and this assisting to bring to the fore some degree of stability for the charts, might contribute to some degree of short covering profit taking in the coming weeks.

Brazil shall be on holiday again tomorrow, as the country shall celebrate Proclamacão da Repúplica Day or Republic Day, which is related to the end of the Brazil Empire in 1889. This will take Brazil off the field of play tomorrow but with internal market trade having proved to be price resistant and slow over the past few weeks of soft reference prices within the New York market and not having contributed to aggressive price fixation selling pressure for the New York market, it is unlikely to have much influence upon the New York market.
