Coffee Market Report

The Indonesian government trade data from Sumatra which is the leading coffee producing island within Indonesia, has reported that the islands Robusta coffee exports for the month of February were 171,327 bags or 71.77% lower than the same month last year, at a total of 67,368 bags. This number and following a similarly modest export performance for the previous months has contributed to the cumulative coffee exports for the first five months of the present October 2017 to September 2018 coffee year to be 1,401,973 bags or 67.61% lower than the same period in the previous coffee year, at a total of 671,716 bags.

There is however a new Sumatra Robusta coffee crop harvest due to start during this month but to only really start coming to the fore in volume by May and a crop that shall assist to buoy export volumes for the rest of the year, but with many forecasts indicating that the new crop shall be somewhat modest in volume, it is unlikely that Indonesian Robusta coffee exports shall be a significant feature in terms of global Robusta coffee supply this year.

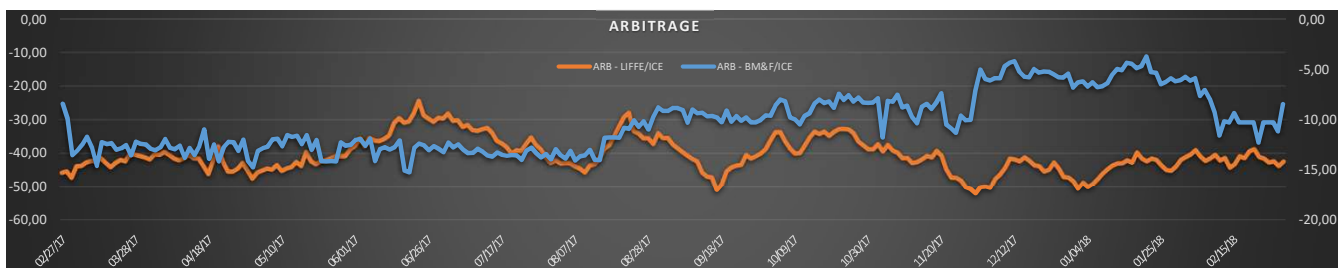

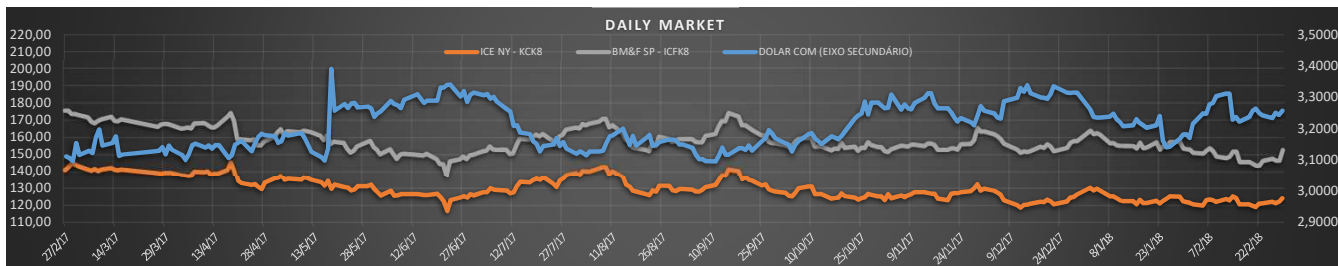

While with the expectations of 3 million bags to 3.5 million bags increase in Vietnam Robusta coffees due to come to the consumer markets this year and with the probability for an approximate 3 million to 4 million bags increase of Brazil conilon Robusta coffees due to come to the consumer markets later this year, the dip in Indonesian Robusta coffee supply is presently of no concern to consumer market players.

The International Coffee Organization ICO have reported that the global coffee exports for the month of January were 20.7% higher than the same month in the previous year, at a total of 11,01 million bags. This they say has contributed to the cumulative exports for the first four months of the present October 2017 to September 2018 coffee year to be 3.1% higher than the same period in the previous coffee year, at a total of 40.74 million bags.

This news from the ICO does little to inspire confidence within the speculative sectors of the terminal markets, who remain focused upon the forecast for a significantly larger and surplus supply new crop from Brazil this year. A crop that shall see the new conilon Robusta coffees starting to impact by May and the new Arabica coffees by August this year, on top of what is already good market supply from the larger new Mexican and Central American Arabica coffee crop and the larger new Robusta coffee crop from Vietnam.

The latter Vietnam factor clearly illustrated by the report that the Vietnam state statistical officials have estimated that the countries exports of mostly Robusta coffees over January and February this year, shall be approximately 17.6% higher than the same period last year, at approximately 5.6 million bags.
